

As a parent of two (A daughter; three, and a son, seven) I fully understand why some would feel it necessary to regulate more fully the content on television. Yet, I strongly feel that the FCC and the government is usurping my right as a parent to regulate what my children may see and do.

Those in this country that want the government to do this for them are nothing but lazy, unintelligent and irresponsible parents.

In short, the regulation of violence and questionable programming for my children is MY job, not YOURS.

-Dylan Craig